

California Water Justice: Values, Conflict & Climate Change

To bond or not to bond? That is but one of the questions.

What will climate change mean to CA water? What is our moral responsibility to our distant watersheds? Can we become more self-sufficient? Why is the delta so stressed? Are farms, fish and urbanites really enemies? How do we recognize the human right to water for basic survival? Will the proposed $11 billion general obligation water bond help or hurt California?

In the face of the threat of climate change, people of faith can play an important role in creating a more just, sustainable, and regionally resilient water future for California.

Join faith leaders and experts in water policy, environmental justice and climate change for a day of learning, community building and practical action.

Date: Saturday, May 8, 2010

Time: 9:30AM – 4:00PM

Place: Neighborhood Unitarian Universalist Church,
301 N. Orange Grove Blvd, Pasadena, CA 91103

Cost: $20 for adults, $5 for students. Lunch provided. Childcare and home hospitality available for interested pre-registrants.
(Additional $10 fee per family for childcare).

To register or for more info: visit www.uulmca.org or call 916 441-0018.

People of any and all faiths, including those not currently active in a faith community are most welcome.

“The human right to water entitles everyone to sufficient, safe, acceptable, physically accessible, and affordable water for personal and domestic use.”

— General Comment 15, U.N. Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights